INDIGESTION !

In cases where natural evacuations are al, take six of Radway's Pills and pulor preserves,—in half an hour they will operate. We have known the most distressing pains of Gastritis, Billious Choite, Infanamatico, Congestion, &c., stopped, and the retained irritating humans expelled from the bowels in thirty minutes by this treatment. It is however, better in chronic cases to take the pilis as they are, and let them gradually dissolve in the stomach. These Pilis possess in the highest degree calibratic, aperient, toole, and dispharetic properties. They do do not weaken or debilitate the system or any of its organs, and will leave the bowels tonic, and dispharetic properties. They do do not weaken or debilitate the system or any of its organs, and will leave the bowels regular and healthy. They purify and equalize the circulation of the blood. No congestion or inflammation will occur while the system is under their influence. Price 25 cents per box, or 5 boxes for one dollar.

INSURRECTION OF CRETE.

When the exasperated Christians first assembled at Perivolia, in the neighborthem to disperse.

they were not armed, and, while asserting ties from the eastern provinces had come agree with them upon the terms and tenor of their petition to the Sultan, an answer to which they would await before return-

The Commissioners, /some of them bethe bold firmness of their attitude, did not know what to do, and told them that they did not see anything reprobensible in their expecting an answer to their petition to was greatly displeased with them, and received them very roughly.

A few days after, the peasants numbered 2,500, and on the 14th of May, they exceeded 3,000, amongst whom could be remarked a group of "Sfakiotes," whose presence produced quite a sensation. Those fearless and intrepid mountaineers, who live in a sort of natural fortress on the southern side of the White Mountains, were showing the most bellicose disposition. To avoid famine in such a multitude of men, and to support those who had abandoned their homes and fields, subscription lists were circulated in the cities, and collections made in the churches when the service was over, in the very presence of the Pasha.

What was the Governor doing in the meanwhile? Nothing. What steps was the Porte taking? Ismail Pasha did not receive any instructions from his Government. All the force he had at command consisted of a few undisciplined "Zapties," or gendurmer. He was completely powerless, and could not prevent the peasants assembled at Perreolis from writing their petition, with the assister of the Pridia. On the 26th of May, 1866, it was addressed to Ismail Pasha, with the request to transmit it without delay to the years have not enjoyed a natural stool, and have been compelled to sar aperions, have been compelled to sar aperions, have been cared by a lew doses of Radway's Pills.

session of the Ottoman Cabinet, but was laid aside. Week after week elarsed without bringing any answer to the Cretans; but troops recently drawn from Anatolia and Roomelia were landed, and seven menof-war took up their positions in the harbor of Canea. Such military demonstrataking a few doses, my liver, stomach, and tions, not followed by any immediate effect, could only invitate the insurgents, already too excited to yield to the mere pressure of a threatening attitude.

The garrison of the Island, in the middle of June, consisted of about 10,000 men, but the leaders of the insurrection boasted of mustering, at their will, a far greater number of soldiers.

seat of his authority. It may thence easily be inferred that he did not like to see matters taking a peaceful course.

The Mussulmans entertained towards the Governor the same hostile feelings as the Christians, and took their port against Ismail Pasha; but when they saw the sanguine confidence of the Christians in the ultimate success of their efforts they remembered the acts of violence and cruelty they had perpetrated with impunity for more than a century and a half, and their consciences told them that an account of retalistion was at band.

A feverish excitement was spreading everywhere, exciting the imagination of the insurgents. Seeing that the Ottoman Cabinet did not reply to their supplications, but was constantly sending out troops, they came to the conclusion that no concession would be granted to them. and that the wisest plan was to make the of substances and elements promotive of necessary preparations in order not to be described, and corrain at the same time to taken by surprise. The articles of the Lorant Herald, a newscaper published in Constantinople, were most hostile to the Turkish Government. It was only on the 23d of July that the Grand Viner Mohamed Buchdi Pasha condescended to dispatch the answer of the Ottoman Cubinet to what they affected to call " a request figured by certain inhab. Turks, on their part, had to prove by the | ker Van Dyke. itants of Crete." This document was published at Canea more than three mouths after the day it had been delivered into the hands of the Governor-General. The answer was worded in general and vague terms, far from satisfactory; to the effect that "it was, and had always been, the expect care of the Imperial Government to promote the happiness and tranquility of all its subjects; the roads would be made in time, but progressively; the petitioners were wrong in not presenting their supplications in a convenient manner, through the proper channel; if the insurgents now assembled would surrender themselves, and give a written assurance R. The last sentence of this improdes bood of Canea, the Pasha delegated to document was full of menace: "If the them some Greeks of note, selected from mutineers persist in their irregular conthe Representatives, with instructions to duct, they will be dispersed by force, and inquire into their intentions, and request severely punished." A separate, and, as I think, most admirable their unsuccessful mission the Governor letter sent to the foreign Consuls was still make the offices of President and Vicemore explicit.

If the Sublime Porte believed it was able to crush down the insurrection which had sprung up from its own mal-administration, it was high time for it to act energetically. On the 29th of July, the troops in the Island numbered 27,000. The Viceroy of Egypt had displayed an unwouted real, and sent 10,000 Egyptian soldiers. On the other side they were not idle. There were orders for 870 more men than could be supplied during the most hord July. A carefully prepared table exhibits the nationality of the persons provided with employment, as follows:

His prograstination had a fatal and disastrous influence on the fate of the insurrection. The unhappy consequences resulting from it are well explained in a letter from one of the foreign Consuls to his Government, an extract from which is as follows: "The delayed departure of Moustafa Pasha from Constantinople is likely to lead to grave consequences.
